

Industrial

General

Projects have included warehousing, chemical works and swarf handling facilities as well as items as diverse as pressure vessels and radio masts. We have provided solutions to problems of vibration in machinery and regularly provide designs to resist seismic loads and other less common load cases. We are able to apply an informed “basic principles” approach to unusual problems and always try to provide practical, imaginative and complete solutions from feasibility studies to fabrication details.

