General

Peter Dann has been providing consultancy services to both public and private clients for housing projects of all types and sizes for many years.

Our design experience ranges from small domestic projects to large public and private sector housing development schemes with varying budgets. We have also provided student accommodation, modular housing systems and have even worked on the only Saxon long hall in the country.

We aim to promote a sustainable development strategy and take full account of lifetime costing and embodied energy to bring financial benefit to our clients as well as helping to protect the environment.
